OUTSPOKEN

A FIVE-STEP METHOD FOR FOUNDERS

One product decision. One post buyers can use.

Swipe: the method, in five steps. OUTSPOKEN studies are illustrative.

STEP 1

Start with a decision, not a feature.

Pick one choice your team made and can defend: what you built, what you left out, and why.

STEP 2

Name the buyer's question.

Write the question the buyer is already asking, in the buyer's words, before you write any answer.

STEP 3

Show the trade-off.

Say what you gave up. A founder who can name the cost is easier to trust than one who lists only benefits.

STEP 4

Add one piece of evidence.

A diagram, a screenshot, a number you can source, or a quote a customer approved. Nothing invented.

STEP 5

End with a lesson to use.

One sentence a buyer can apply this week.
Then stop.

WHY THIS ORDER

Personal-brand and positioning topics led our sample.

In 279 reviewed posts, personal-brand topics had a median of 258 reactions and positioning topics 179. Descriptive only: author, age and topic differ.
